POST-ELECTION WEBINAR ON OPPOSITION IN THE NEW PARLIAMENT: SURVEYING THE CHANGED POLITICAL LANDSCAPE

This year's election has set the stage for a profound transformation of the political landscape. With Labour anticipated to secure a significant majority, and the Conservatives facing potential historic losses, the implications for opposition in the new parliament are vast. The Liberal Democrats aim to surpass the SNP in seats, while the Greens, Reform UK, and independent candidates are also vying for representation. Remarkably, the Conservatives might even find themselves in third place by seats or votes.

To analyse and discuss these developments, the Centre for Opposition Studies is hosting an expert round-table discussion on the first full day of parliamentary proceedings following the King's Speech.
