Aims of the programme

The principal aims of the programme are to enable trainees:

1. to become professional practitioners in the lifelong learning sector.
2. develop an understanding of own roles and professional responsibilities
3. develop and feel confident in own presentation skills
4. explain and demonstrate methodologies for management and development of groups
5. develop an understanding of methods and types of assessment in the lifelong learning sector

Distinctive features of the programme

What students should know and be able to do on completion of the programme:

The qualification has a core module which clarifies the scope and purpose; teaching and learning methods; learning outcomes etc., informed by national standards as appropriate.

Practical teaching is developed by means of a short teaching session to peers which relates to module assessments.

Trainees who are assessed as successful in this module are inferred to have achieved the qualification's aims and objectives, since the former is a detailed clarification of the requirements of the latter. Provided there has been no infringement of the University's or Scheme's regulations, such a trainee would normally be recommended to the Teacher Training Assessment Board for a pass in the award for which they were registered.

By the end of their programme of study, trainees will have:

1. Explored roles and responsibilities in the lifelong learning sector.
2. Made informed comment on the applicability, relevance and usefulness of theories, concepts and models, methodologies and techniques applied to practice.

Programme learning outcomes

K. Knowledge and understanding

On completion of the programme successful students will be able to demonstrate systematic knowledge and understanding of teaching their specialist subject:

Trainees will

1. Analyse curriculum specifications and requirements, students' needs and characteristics, and available resources to make informed choices for teaching and supporting learning.
2. Justify approaches taken towards planning, preparing, assessing, evaluating and reviewing learning.
3. Evaluate educational literature and research and apply relevant insights to their practice.
4. Develop inclusive approaches to teaching and learning, addressing issues of disability, age, race, ethnicity, culture, gender, class and sexual orientation.
5. Analyse and review the organisation, structure and function of the Lifelong Learning Sector's educational provision.

C. Cognitive, intellectual or thinking skills

On completion of the programme successful students will be able to demonstrate the ability to:

1. Critically reflect on their own professional development in the context of their own teaching role.

P. Practical, professional or subject-specific skills

On completion of the programme successful students will be able to demonstrate the ability to

1. Undertake teaching: planning, preparing, implementing, assessing, evaluating and reviewing teaching and learning for individuals and groups, communicating effectively, creating an appropriate climate, and promoting learning.

T. Transferable, key or personal skills

On completion of the programme successful students will be able to demonstrate the ability to:

1. Communicate effectively using written, verbal and non-verbal means and visual aids.
2. Develop their capacity to learn about and to investigate teaching and learning.

Learning and teaching strategies

A variety of teaching and learning methods are employed throughout the programme in order to ensure the acquisition and development of the appropriate knowledge, understanding, skills and competences in order to achieve the learning outcomes. Some of these will be experienced during formally timetabled classes with your tutor and some will be experienced through workshops, small group and individual practical activities together with structured exercises and discussions. Individual support will be given in tutorials. Blended learning will be utilised as appropriate, for example utilising the VLE to provide an e-forum for trainee teachers to discuss their work and obtain peer support. You will be required to take part in e-discussions with peers and tutors and to make full use of ICT as a source of information and support and to maintain a portfolio of evidence.

It is expected that you will demonstrate significant independence in your study, taking responsibility for the management of your own learning time.

Grade bands and classifications

(for information only at this stage – the Assessment regulations are being revised for September 12.)

In order for trainees to achieve a 'Pass', all the specific assessment criteria must be addressed and achieved. In addition, the general criteria must be addressed. The following grade descriptors provide the opportunity to recognise the extent to which the trainee has achieved the general criteria for assessment.

Following formal assessment of an assignment, there are, therefore, four possible outcomes – distinction, merit, pass and refer, (in line with the Ofsted grading of 1, 2, 3, 4). 'Refer' indicates that the work submitted is inadequate. Detailed feedback will be provided to enable a second attempt to be made. The maximum grade possible following a second attempt will be a 'pass'. An assignment which does not meet all the criteria following a second attempt will routinely be second marked to ensure the accuracy of the grade.
